ABOUT

Glenda Rovello has a life long interest in visual storytelling.

An attention to detail, visual sophistication, and a love for storytelling are constants in her work. She is passionate about design and building and the representation of how things work together.

With a graduate degree in Architecture from the University of Texas at Austin, Glenda worked extensively in the United States for noted architects Robert Venturi, Charles Moore and Barton Myers before entering work in entertainment. Experience in a wide range of film and television projects ranging from features to variety, talk, awards and multi-camera shows has given Glenda far-reaching experience that she regularly draws upon. With numerous awards and nominations, Glenda has received four Emmys and two Art Director's Guild Awards for Excellence in Production design.
